Sounds good. Also as an FYI, we use detectives so they can also be plain clothes in unmarked vehicles depending on what type of presence is needed.

Jeff,

The safety plan is not set. I will be discussing safety later today with Katie Fairchild, the Assistant U.S. Attorney handling this matter for EPA. Her office could provide the U.S. Marshall's service for our safety. It is also good to know that King County deputies may be able to assist us. I will get back to you and James when I have more information.

James,

Our attorneys are working with the Department of Justice to get access to the site. (Richard Mednick, copied here, is an EPA attorney filling in for Kris Leefers this week and dealing with DOJ.) DOJ may provide assistance regarding a LEO for the initial day. There has been some expression of concern for our safety. We are considering asking KC deputies to stop by every day for a few minutes just to keep things civil. Also, FYI, our mobilization plan has been changed to Tuesday, November 13.

Richard,

James is the technical lead representing King County and has been assisting us with technical expertise and logistical support. He has offered to arrange KC deputies to provide safety assistance upon initial mobilization. I know that DOJ often provides this service. Do you have any knowledge of what the plans might be in this regard?

Jeff

Hi Jeff:

We need to know whether you want the LEO to be present (or standing by offsite) next Monday by early this week so we can schedule the officer.

Thanks-Jim

Mark:

James Neely is the technical lead representing King County.

Scott Marlow is the Assistant Attorney General for Washington.

Have you also contacted Ecology's PIO? Tom Buroker is the Regional Administrator for Ecology.

James/Scott/Tom:

Mark is EPA's lead Public Information Officer.
